REPORT TO: Witter Research Group

SUBJECT: Samuel Witter (1787–1876) and the War of 1812

BACKGROUND: One Samuel Witter (aka Witer), a millwright said to have been born in Pennsylvania about 1784, enlisted on 4 April 1814 in the 17th U.S. Cavalry, a Kentucky unit. He was recruited (place unknown) by “Lt. Hackley,” then served under Capt. B. W. Sanders and Lieut. R. M. Ewing. He was discharged at Chillicothe, Ohio, on 7 June 1815. No other personal information is known about him.

Meanwhile, Samuel Witter (aka Witer, Weeter, Weetar) a millwright said to have been born in Pennsylvania on 12 May 1787, first appears on record with the Franklin County, Pa., census of 1820, shortly after his marriage to Rachel Smith (aka Reifschneider, Reafsnider, etc.). About 1840, Samuel moved his family to adjacent Bedford County then, about 1847–50, to Lawrence County, Ill. This Samuel was of age to fight in the War of 1812, but no service is known for him. He lived long enough to apply for both bounty land and a pension but, again, no such records have been found for him.

For further background, see “Samuel Witter, 17th U.S. Infantry, War of 1812 Enlistment Record: An Analysis” dated 15 December 2011. That report identifies clues to be pursued and sets forth a work plan that will be initiated in the present assignment.

TASK: This research segment will focus on

- the War of 1812 and its military actions;
- relevant enlistment, bounty, and pension laws;
- available bounty and pension collections; and
- post-war identification of the various candidates for Samuel of the 17th Regiment

QUESTION: Was the Pennsylvania millwright Samuel Witter of the 17th the same as the Pennsylvania millwright Samuel Witter (1787–1876)?

LIMITATIONS: 30 hours

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

This report details the results for Items 1–6 of the Work Plan of 15 December 2011. In brief:

- A clear copy of the enlistment record has been found and the 1814 enlistment date is confirmed.
- The officer who recruited Witter has been identified as Lt. James Hackley.
- Witter’s unit has been more specifically identified as the 4th Company of the 17th Regiment.
- One transcribed and published payroll has been found for Witter’s unit, dated June 1814, which identifies 76 comrades for further study.
- Engagements identified for Witter’s company include (a) the 1814 Battle of Michilimackinac, (b) 1814 destruction of Fort Erie (Can.), and (c) a winter–spring 1815 layover at Buffalo, N.Y., and Erie, Pa.
• Bounty land records have been located for Samuel of the 17th and the land has been tracked to Monroe County, Arkansas.
• War of 1812 rolls of Pennsylvania militia have been searched for Samuel, with potential results.
• Three Samuel Witters have been identified as likely candidates for Samuel of the 17th Regiment.

The following table outlines the extent to which each “fits” the details known for the soldier.

• Sufficient evidence still does not exist to eliminate any of the three as a candidate for Samuel of the 17th U.S. Regiment.
• A DC-based researcher has been engaged to pursue Items 8–10 of the Work Plan of 15 December.

A clear contradiction still exists with this document. The alleged “May 14, 1815” march to Detroit is recorded out of chronological sequence (between 6 June 1814 and Feb. 25, 1815) and, as subsequently seen in this report, it does not fit the known whereabouts and activities of the units of the 17th regiment during the winter and spring of 1815.

NEW FINDINGS

ENLISTMENT: 1814

A clearer image of the Enlistment Register has been obtained. (See Attachment 1.) This document confirms the reading made from the earlier copy and clearly shows 1814 as the year of enlistment.

THE 17th U.S. REGIMENT

Formation:
The 17th Regiment of the U.S. Army was one of ten “regular army” units created under a Congressional Act of January 1812 in a buildup for the anticipated conflict with England. At the outbreak of the war, regulars were enrolled for a mandatory five years. However, a series of Congressional acts modified that in 1813 and 1814. Given Samuel Witter’s enlistment on 4 April 1814, the law governing his enlistment would have been the act of 27 January 1814, which states:

“In order to complete the present military establishment to the full number authorized by law with the greatest possible despatch, there shall be paid to each effective able-bodied man who shall after the first day of February next be enlisted into the army of the United States, to serve for the term of five years, or during the war, at his election, ... the sum of one hundred and twenty-four dollars; fifty dollars of which to be paid at the time the recruit is enlisted, fifty dollars when he shall be mustered and have joined some military corps for service, and twenty-four dollars when he shall be discharged from service.”

The 17th was initially a Kentucky unit. However, by early 1814 its ranks (and those of many other Army units) were severely depleted. According to the U. S. Army Lineage Series:

A mighty effort was made in 1814 to raise the Army to strength, and nearly 27,000 men came in, but in spite of this, four of the regiments had to be consolidated because they were too small. The 17th, 19th, 26th, and 27th were joined to form a new 17th and a new 19th, while the two highest numbered, the 47th and 48th, were redesignated the 27th and 26th, respectively.

One classic study of Kentucky units in the War of 1812 provides a somewhat different version of the 1814 consolidation; it also identifies more fully the officers under whom Witter served:

“Organized under the acts of January 11 and June 26, 1812. Consolidated May 30, 1814, with the 1st, 24th, 28th and 29th regiments of infantry to form the present 3rd Regiment of Infantry, United States Army.

3 U.S. Statutes at Large, 12th Cong., 2d Sess., 29 January 1813, chap. 16, was the first to reduce the minimum period to “one year, unless sooner discharged.” See also 13th Cong., 1st Sess., 5 July 1813 and 12 Aug. 1813, for various modifications.

“Field and Staff—Col. Samuel Wells, Lieut.-Colonel Wm. McMillan, George Todd, Majors Richard Davenport, George Croghan, Richard Graham, Richard Oldham, etc. (17).

Lieut. James Hackley of the 7th Company, was the enrolling officer who recruited Samuel Witter somewhere. Typically, newly mustered recruits were then assigned wherever they were needed. The 4th company was the unit in which Witter served.

Recruiting:

Recruiting for the U.S. Army Regulars was heavily handicapped during the war by competition with the states, each of which needed its own volunteers and enticed them with the offer of shorter terms. Published literature on the Regulars serving in the Old Northwest seems to offer nothing on Lt. Hackley’s activities but it does document some Ohio recruitment into the 17th. A local “military heritage” site focused on Warren County, Ohio, asserts that the 17th operated a recruiting office at Lebanon during the war, but provides neither a time frame nor documentation. An 1891 compilation of “Kentucky soldiers” by that state’s Adjutant General’s Office more substantially dates a recruiting campaign in Ohio to March 1814:

“Roll of Field and Staff, Miller’s Regiment, U.S. Infantry, War of 1812—Commanded by Colonel John Miller:

John Miller, Colonel
[“Appointed or Enlisted”] July 9, 1812, Commanded 1st Brigade at Black’s Rock

George Todd [sic], Lt.-Colonel
[“Appointed or Enlisted”] March 13, 1814, Superintendent recruiting in Ohio”

However, Miller and “Todd” [Tod] were Ohioans who had served in the 19th Regiment since the inception of the war. Their involvement with Kentucky troops is clarified by Heitman’s Historical Register of the United States Army, which provides the following synopses for the 17th and the 19th:

The specific location at which Lieut. James Hackley recruited Samuel Witter possibly can be identified by the location of Witter’s enlistment papers or the National Archives researcher’s examination of the 1814–82 “Registers of No. of Recruits” for its details on April 1814 recruitment activity by Lt. Hackley. It might also be identified by studying the service summaries (Register of Enlistment, M848) for each of Witter’s fellow soldiers named in the 1 June–31 October 1814 payroll presented later in this report.

Campaigns:
The Samuel Witter service summary in the Enlistment Register does not identify any campaigns in which Witter served. One history of the 17th Infantry identifies two campaigns in which the regiment participated after Witter’s enlistment. Its overview of the regiment’s activities quoted below, mentions only one company of the 17th, but not that of Capt. Sanders:

Niagara Campaign
Summer 1814

“Following Perry’s Victory on Lake Erie, the British retreated back to Canada and eventual defeat at the river Thames. The 17th was sent back to occupy Detroit with the bulk of the Northwest Army. With a reduced need for men, Capt. Chunn’s company of the 17th was detached with another company of the 19th infantry for operations on the Niagara frontier. Arriving in Buffalo, Chunn’s company was assigned to the training camp at Flint Hill, commanded by Gen. Winfield Scott to prepare for the invasion of Canada. On their way there, they were diverted to a raid on Dover, Canada on May 14. There they were employed to burn food stores and public property.

“The main invasion began on July 2nd with the attack and capture of Ft. Erie from the British. Assigned to Gen. Ripley’s brigade, Capt. Chunn’s company was attached to the 21st infantry along with Lt. Riddle’s company of the 19th infantry. Together they were participants in the battle of Lundy's Lane on July 25th, attacking the British center, taking the crest of the hill and the artillery positions.

“Withdrawing to Ft. Erie, they remained for the siege of the fort by the British. The remainder of the 17th arrived at Ft. Erie from Detroit on October 6th [three weeks after the siege was lifted11] onboard the Brig Niagara. Capt. Chunn was cited for bravery and brevetted to Major for his defense of the American fortifications on Snake Hill during the British assault of August.

“Following the abandonment of Ft. Erie by the Americans in the fall of 1814, the 17th regiment was taken into winter quarters in Erie, Pennsylvania. They were here when the war ended in December. The regiment was disbanded during the post-war reductions, and the remnant was taken into the 3rd infantry.

Other Campaigns

“While in Detroit in the summer on 1814, a portion of the 17th was detached to an expedition conducted by the Navy and Army to recapture Ft. Mackinaw. While able to cut off supplies to the British on the upper Great Lakes, the campaign soon became hindered by the loss of ships to Canadian raiding parties. Trying to repeat the British landing on Mackinaw Island also met with defeat. With these setbacks, the American force retired to Detroit where it remained for most of the war, conducting occasional raids into Canada.”12

Witter’s service summary notes his presence on two rosters during the post-war wind-down—both dated February 1815—but it does not state a location. It places him on a “March to Detroit” that apparently was launched on 14 May 1815, but it does not say where the march originated. That “March to Detroit” notation seemingly rules out the possibility that he was among the forces already at Detroit when the war ended.

If the service summary correctly places Witter at Lexington Barracks ca. 6 June 1814, then—time wise—it is all but certain that he did not participate in the June and July conflicts at Fort Erie and Niagara Falls.

11 Heidler and Heidler, Encyclopedia of the War of 1812, 67, dates the lifting of the siege as 21 September 1814.
As subsequently seen under the “Military Pension” section of this report, Witter’s company did participate in the bloody 4 August 1814 Battle of Michilimakinac (aka Ft. Mackinaw). Ostensibly, they would have been among “the remainder of the 17th [who] arrived at Ft. Erie from Detroit on October 6th aboard the Brig Niagara.”

Three weeks after the “March to Detroit” notation (if the date is correct), Witter was discharged at Chillicothe, Ohio. If his unit marched from Fort Erie, Ontario (across the Niagara River from Buffalo, New York), the trek would have covered roughly 400 miles, on foot. That rate of roughly 20 miles per day conforms to one Ohio officer’s report that 25 miles a day was average for troops carrying some 35 pounds of gear.13

Discharge:
On the heels of its 3 March 1815 Declaration of Peace, Congress enacted legislation to limit the size of the U.S. Army to a maximum of ten thousand men. The terms of that act also stated, “the President of the United States [shall] cause ... the supernumerary officers, non-commissioned officers, musicians, and privates, to be discharged from the service of the United States, from and after the first day of May next, or as soon as circumstances may permit.”14

Samuel Witter was not one of the 10,000 who stayed with the Army. Even though he did not serve the full five years for which he had obligated himself, his willingness to make that commitment had maximized his bounty under the act of 27 January 1824. The $100 he received initially and the $24 he received at discharge, would have a purchasing power of $1,811 today.15 In a place and time in which land could be purchased from the federal government at $2 an acre, that war service could have bought him 62 acres.

Officers & Men of Witter’s Company:
A 1 June–31 October 1814 payroll for Witter’s company (one not abstracted into his War Department’s service summary) has been transcribed and published. That list is copied below, as a basis for eventual study of all pension applications filed by Witter’s compatriots who lived long enough to file for a pension:

Unless otherwise indicated, the dates provided for all men on this list are the same as those provided for Witter: June 1, 1814–October 31, 1814.16

The abstractor of this roll does not identify it as a payroll. To the contrary, he suggests that the dates may represent the dates of enlistment and the period of service. However, almost all the individuals on the roll carry the same beginning and ending dates—a circumstance typical of payrolls.

Note, particularly, the presence of John Baker on the list above. He will appear again in the “Military Pension” section of this report.

Military Post Returns
In addition to payrolls, muster rolls, and duty rosters, the nineteenth-century records of the Adjutant General’s Office include a massive collection of morning reports, weekly reports, and monthly returns from (theoretically) each existing military post. Unlike the rolls, most reports and returns do not enumerate all soldiers—only the officers and the units stationed there at the time. Beyond that, they provide statistical data and details on “events.” Soldiers are typically mentioned only in the context of an event such as a furlough or illness.

These “post returns” have been reproduced by the National Archives on 1,550 rolls identified as microfilm publication M617. The records are arranged alphabetically by the name of the post. The descriptive pamphlet for that collection is available online at the National Archives website, as a searchable PDF.¹⁷

To identify any and all appropriate returns, without knowing where Witter’s unit might have been, I ran a search for “1814” and “1815,” then examined each hit to identify posts that would have been within the regions in which the 17th is known to have then been.

RESULTS:
Negative. The only returns identified for any post in Kentucky, in the Old Northwest, or surrounding the Great Lakes were those for Detroit. However, they did not begin until August 1815, after Samuel Witter had been discharged.

MILITARY BOUNTY LAND

1811–12 Legislation

After the Louisiana Purchase of 1803, the new United States was land rich and cash poor. For several decades thereafter, the promise of free land became a major enticement for troop buildup in time of war. Under acts of December 1811 and January 1812, passed by Congress in anticipation of the upcoming conflict, men who enlisted for a five-year term were eligible for 160 acres upon completion of their service. Those acts explicitly forbade the assignment or transfer of the warrant to any party other than the one who served. In an effort to prevent the circulation of the warrants, no warrants were issued directly to the men who served. They were retained by the General Land Office and a notice was sent to each veteran, alerting him that a warrant was available in his name. Even so, a brisk business existed in the sale of the rights to bounty land; and historians estimate that many, if not most, War of 1812 bounty land warrants were eventually cashed in by non-veterans.

Samuel Witter’s File:

Samuel Witter of the 17th U.S. Regiment was one of those who claimed his promised land by proxy. His degree of involvement in the land’s selection and settlement remains unknown. His bounty-land file consists of just two documents. (See Attachment 2.)

- A discharge certificate.
- A file “jacket,” with basic details on the bounty land warrant issued in his name.

Both documents are created on preprinted forms. In the following full transcription, the data entered by hand appears in boldface Roman type.

E. J. Parker? Lt. Colonel"

- Witter’s specific place of birth is left blank.
- The surname of one signer is barely legible.
- Nothing on the document itself explains the top right reference to “Hon. Alny McLean.” The penmanship is not that of the scribe.

Content Analysis:

Identification of soldier:
This Samuel Witter is clearly the man of the enlistment record. The date of enlistment, age, physical description, occupation, company, regiment, and lieutenant’s identification all match. The word “single” on the jacket refers to the type of grant allowed under the law, not the status of the grantee.

Identification of Hon. Alney McLean:
The involvement of McLean strongly suggests that this Samuel Witter spent at least some time in Kentucky after his discharge at Chillicothe, Ohio. Before and after the war, McLean was an attorney in Greenville, Muhlenberg County, Kentucky. Post-war, he also served two terms in the U.S. Congress. The Biographical Directory of the U.S. Congress provides the following:

“McLEAN, Alney, (1779–1841) a Representative from Kentucky; born in Burke County, N.C., June 10, 1779; pursued preparatory studies; moved to Kentucky; appointed surveyor of Muhlenberg County in 1799 and elected one of the trustees of Greenville on its formation; studied law; was admitted to the bar and commenced practice in Greenville, Muhlenberg County, Ky., about 1805; member of the State house of representatives in 1812 and 1813; served as a captain in the War of 1812; elected as a Republican to the Fourteenth Congress (March 4, 1815–March 3, 1817); elected to the Sixteenth Congress (March 4, 1819–March 3, 1821); served as judge of the fourteenth district of Kentucky from 1821 until his death; presidential elector on the Clay ticket in 1824 and on the ticket of Clay and Sergeant in 1832; died near Greenville, Muhlenberg County, Ky., December 30, 1841; interment in Old Caney Station Cemetery, near Greenville, Ky. 21

Although McLean’s involvement with Witter’s bounty-land warrant is not explained on the document, one of two situations likely existed.

- Men discharged from service in 1815 were eagerly sought by land speculators who offered to obtain the bounty land for them. Typically, the speculators paid the veteran a token for the right to “represent them in securing his land” and for a power of attorney that would allow the “representative” to sell the land after the patent was issued to the veteran. Among the most-common “representatives” were attorneys, land surveyors, the veteran’s own officers, and the members of Congress who passed the bounty-land act in the first place. (“Insider trading” by Congressman was as rampant in the nineteenth-century as in the twenty-first.)

- Veterans, postwar, also approached attorneys or respected community leaders in the area where they resided, seeking help in filing for the bounty land.

Both patterns suggest that Witter settled for at least a while, postwar, in the Muhlenberg area. That county lies in Southwest Kentucky, about seventy-five miles below the Ohio River and about a hundred miles from the Mississippi.

McLean’s biography offers two potentially relevant details:

- He was a county surveyor before the war, an occupation frequently found among land speculators who used their expertise with soil and topography to ferret out the most productive tracts of land.

- Between March 1817 and March 1819, McLean was not in Congress. The bio does not account for his activities. Ostensibly, he would have returned to his family and his law practice in Kentucky. The timing is relevant to any determination of when and where he became involved with Samuel Witter.

Witter’s Warrant Registration

Recipients of bounty-land warrants under the Acts of 1811 and 1812 had five years after discharge to exchange the warrant for land. That land was awarded only in the territories of Michigan, Illinois (north of the Illinois River) and “Louisiana” (specifically, the region between the Arkansas and St. Francis Rivers that became Arkansas).22 Shortly before the five-year deadline, Witter’s warrant was returned to the U.S. Land Office, in exchange for a tract of Arkansas land. (See Attachment 3.)

On 14 February, 1820, Witter’s warrant was recorded in the Warrant Registry as follows:

“Pursuant to the second section of an Act of Congress passed the 6th of May, 1812, authorizing the Secretary of War to issue Land Warrants to the noncommissioned Officers and Soldiers enlisted in the service of the United States, conformably to the acts of the 24th of December, 1811, and of the 11th of January, 1812, Samuel Witter, late a Private in the company commanded by Lieutenant R. W. Ewing, of the 17th Regiment United States Infantry, is entitled to one hundred and sixty acres of land, to be located agreeably to the said act on any unlocated parts of the six millions of acres appropriated by law for the original grantees of such military warrants; and this warrant is not assignable or transferrable in any manner whatsoever.

The State of Arkansas has also posted online digital images from its state-level register of military bounty lands issued within its bounds. That state-level register is arranged by legal description (section, township, and range). It contains no name index and the Arkansas website provides no database. Using the legal description of the land, Witter’s registration was locatable in the register (see Attachment 5).

Witter’s Patent

A digital image of the actual patent issued to “Samuel Wetter” is available at the online database maintained by the Bureau of Land Management. (See Attachment 6.) The quality of the download image provided by the website is poor; but the site offers the option to purchase a better copy. On the following transcription, made from the website image, boldface marks the words penned on the preprinted form.

“James Monroe, President of the United States of America, to All to whom these presents shall come, Greeting. Know ye That in pursuance of the Acts of Congress appropriating and granting Land to the late Army of the United States, passed on and since the sixth day of May, 1812, Samuel Wetter having deposited in the General Land Office a Warrant in his favor numbered 23,642, there is granted unto the said Samuel Wetter, late a private in Ewings Company of the 17th Regiment of Infantry, a certain Tract of Land, containing One hundred & Sixty Acres, being the South East qr. of Section fourteen of Township one North and Range Two West in the Tract appropriated (by the Acts aforesaid) for Military Bounties, in the Territory of Arkansas. Samuel’s usage of the Arkansas land:
Local land research in Monroe County, Arkansas, could not be done within the time limits of the present project to determine what Samuel did with his tract. Two situations commonly existed:

- Once the land was located, with the help of an “agent” who made the site selection for the veteran and carried out the formal land entry at the U.S. land office, the patent would be acquired by the agent, who then sold the land to speculators—also men connected to the attorneys. In these situations, the veterans were never physically in the locale where the land was located.

- Men who did choose to relocate to the area where bounty-land could be obtained were more careful in their selection of land. As with “squatters” without bounty-land warrants, they typically chose an unoccupied tract, threw up a cabin, cleared a few acres, and put a test patch under cultivation. If the first crops were adequately productive, they would then apply for the chosen tract. The five-year window allotted under the bounty-land act allowed time for land scouting and testing—if Samuel Witter of the 17th chose to go to Arkansas.

Research in the local land and tax records of Monroe County should resolve the question as to whether Samuel Witter was physically present in Monroe County.

1847–55 LEGISLATION
Four acts during this period provided additional lands for veterans and the widows and minors of deceased veterans. In brief:

11 February 1847:
This act was directed to new recruits for the Mexican War and is not relevant to Samuel Witter.\footnote{U.S. Statutes at Large, 29th Cong., 2nd Sess., 11 Feb. 1847, chap. 8, “An Act to Raise for a limited Time an additional military Force, and for other Purposes,” Sect. 9.}

28 September 1850:
“Each of the surviving [veterans], or the widow or minor children of deceased commissioned and non-commissioned officers, musicians, or privates, whether of regulars, volunteers, rangers, or militia, who performed military service in any regiment, company, or detachment, in the service of the United States, in the war with Great Britain, declared by the United States on the eighteenth day of June, eighteen hundred and twelve, or in any of the Indian wars since seventeen hundred and ninety, and each of the commissioned officers who was engaged in the military service of the United States in the late war with Mexico, shall be entitled to lands as follows: Those who engaged to serve twelve months or during the war, and actually served nine months, shall receive one hundred and sixty acres, and those who engaged to serve six months, and actually served four months, shall receive eighty acres, and those who engaged... to serve for any or an indefinite period, and actually served one month, shall receive forty acres. Provided, That wherever any officer or soldier was honorably discharged in consequence of disability in the service, before the expiration of his period of service, he shall receive the amount to which he would have been entitled if he had served the full period for which he had engaged to serve: Provided, The person so having been in service shall not receive said land, or any part thereof, if it shall appear, by the muster rolls of his regiment or corps, that he deserted, or was dishonorably discharged from service, or if he has received, or is entitled to, any military land bounty under any act of Congress heretofore passed.”

This last provision disqualified Samuel Witter from receiving additional lands, as did the supplementary acts that followed.

22 March 1852:
Eligibility included all who “were called into military service, and whose services have been paid by the United States” after 18 June 1812—whether the service was in militias, volunteer units, or regular troops—“upon proof of length of service as therein required.” However, “nothing herein contained shall authorize bounty land to these who have heretofore received or become entitled to same.”

3 March 1855:
Coverage was extended to all conflicts since 1790 and several categories of military employees; minimum service was reduced to fourteen days. All classes were entitled to 160 acres. If a person had previously received less than that, he was now entitled to the difference. However, those who had received 160 acres under the acts of 1811 and 1812 were again ineligible.

POTENTIAL PRIOR SERVICE IN PENNSYLVANIA MILITIA

Pennsylvania’s statewide index to militiamen serving in the War of 1812 does not include any person surnamed Witter or any logical variant spelling or misreading.

Considering the possibility that this derivative source might have mistranscribed the surname, I also flagged all “W” entries for individuals named Samuel and Abraham, then ran an 1810 and 1820 census search for their named officers and others identifiable for their companies. That exercise yielded no Samuel or William whose associates were clustered in Franklin or Bedford Counties.

Possible Service: Samuel Witter/Widder/Weidner?

One Samuel “Weidner” has been identified for the Franklin County Light Dragoons under Colonel Jared Irwin, Capt. Andrew Oakes, and Lt. Thomas Wilson. According to an 1887 history of Franklin:

“June 12, 1812, Congress declared war against Great Britain. ... During the three years of hostilities thirteen companies of Franklin County men were recruited and sent to the field of action. ... A large number of these was found in this county, many of them ready on short notice to march in effective martial display to the front. We have the names of the ANTRIM GREENS, a rifle company of 60 men; FRANKLIN COUNTY LIGHT DRAGOONS, 41 men - Captain, JAMES MCDOWELL; CONCORD LIGHT INFANTRY, 30 men - Captain, MICHAEL HARPER; CHAMBERSBURG UNION VOLUNTEERS, 51 men - Captain, JEREMIAH SNIDER. These companies at once tendered their services, th[r]ough COUNTY BRIGADE INSPECTOR WILLIAM McCLELLAN, to the Government.

“The first detachment of troops left the county September 5, 1812. This was composed of the UNION VOLUNTEERS, the FRANKLIN RIFLEMEN, the CONCORD LIGHT INFANTRY, the MERCERSBURG RIFLES and the ANTRIM GREENS - total 264, officers and men. The quota of the county was 507, and the deficiency was made up by draft from the militia. MAJOR WILLIAM McCLELLAN was in command of the detachment. They were sent to the northwest frontier, proceeding there by way of Bedford, Pittsburgh and Meadville, reaching the latter place in September. The troops were there reorganized into four regiments—two of rifles and two of infantry. JEREMIAH SNIDER was elected colonel of the First Regiment, JOHN PURVIANCE of the Second Regiment. The four regiments being formed into a brigade under GENERAL TANNAHILL, DR. SAMUEL D. CULBERTSON, of Chambersburg, was appointed surgeon-in-chief; JOHN McCLINTOCK became captain of Snider’s company, on the latter being made colonel, and GEORGE K. HARPER was promoted to the vacant lieutenancy in SNIDER’s company. The companies of CAPTAINS McCLINTOCK, REGES, and HARPER were in COLONEL SNIDER’s regiment and those of CAPTAINS OAKS and HAYS in COLONEL JARED IRWIN’s regiment. Immediately after the re-organization, the command marched to Buffalo, reaching there in November, where it went into winter quarters, and remained until discharged, their term of enlistment expiring in January, 1813.”

The 1887 author subsequently listed the officers and men known to serve in the various units. The second company on his list appears as follows:

COMMENT:
Re: Samuel and Daniel “Weidner”:

- No “Weidner,” or close variant spelling can be found on the Franklin County censuses of either 1810 or 1820 or in a literature search. (My past examinations of the original courthouse records focused on Witter and known variants at that time; Weidner was not among the potential variants that were searched.) In state-level patent records for the county, Weidener appears as one variant spelling of the surname of Jacob Witter.33

- “Widnor” is also noted as a variant spelling of the Witter surname in Fendrick’s biographical sketches of Revolutionary Soldiers who lived at some point in Franklin County. Specifically the sketch for Christopher Witter, who is said to have moved from Lancaster Co., Pennsylvania, to Greencastle, Antrim Township, Franklin County, notes the variants “Widnor, Weider, and Widder” in the tax, church, and probate (1807) records created by this man and his sons Jacob, George, and Michael.34

- A search of the 1810 and 1820 censuses of Franklin, for all members of Capt. Andrew Oakes’s company, places nearly half of these men (including Oakes) in Antrim township. However, every township in Franklin County is represented by at least one man. Also, at least five of the men were from Metal Township, where Benjamin Witter appears in 1820 and John Witter had owned land as early as 1800.

- In January 1813 (as noted above) Samuel and Daniel “Weidner” were discharged at Buffalo. Literature and census searches of Franklin County and elsewhere in Western Pennsylvania has not yet revealed post-1813 records of a Samuel or Daniel “Weidner.”

- The official War Department index to War of 1812 pension records includes 4 Samuels of the surname Weidner and its phonetic equivalents Widener and Winer, as well as one Daniel “Whitner,” but none of these men are credited to the military unit above.35

MILITARY PENSION

Samuel Witter’s service summary in the Enlistment Register ends with the words “See pension case.” The word “case” rather than “file” might suggest that he did not receive a pension but pursued a legal appeal, either through the bureau, through his congressman, or through the U.S. Congressional Court of Claims. However, the compilers of this register consistently used the term “case” for all the soldiers.

According to Eales’s and Kvasnicka’s guide to records in the National Archives:

“The War of 1812 series of pension application records ... chiefly concern pensions granted by acts of 1871 (16 Stat. 411) and 1878 (20 Stat. 27). The former provided pensions to veterans who had been cited by Congress for specific service if they did not later support the Confederate cause during the Civil War, and to many widows of such veterans if the marriage had taken place before the treaty of peace in 1815. The 1878 act provided for pensions to veterans who had served 14 days in any engagement and to widows of such veterans.

“Interfiled or consolidated with the files in the series are some War of 1812 pension application files that previously formed a part of the Old Wars pension series. ...

“The ‘Old Wars’ series of pension application files relates chiefly to claims based on death or disability incurred in service in the regular forces between the end of the Revolutionary War in 1783 and the outbreak of the Civil War in 1861. The claims concern service in the Regular Army, Navy, or Marine Corps during the War of 1812.”

In brief: unless Samuel Witter of 17th U.S. Regiment applied after the 1878 act, it appears that the “case” referenced for him in his service summary would have claimed (a) a disability or (b) a citation of meritorious service by Congress. No trace of either was found in the following searches:

- Index to War of 1812 Pension Application Files, National Archives microfilm publication M323, 102 rolls.
- White, Index to Old Wars Pension Files.
- White, Index to War of 1812 Pension Files.
- U.S. Statutes at Large, 1789–1875.
- U.S. House & Senate Debates and Journals.
- Digested Summary and Alphabetical List of Private Claims (Abstracted tables of Congressional claims cases prior to 1853).

One of the three men identified as potential candidates for this War of 1812 veteran (see next section) died well within the time frame covered by all the materials above. A second appears to have died in the 1860s. The third man, our Samuel Witter, died 25 December 1876, leaving no widow or minors. If he appealed to Congress for a pension in the last year of his life, those records would not be among the Congressional records accessible online. They need to be sought elsewhere. Specifically:

- Supporting files at the National Archives: if a trace of a pension appeal is found for him in any of the above, then the supporting documents need to be identified and obtained from the National Archives.

POTENTIAL CANDIDATES FOR SAMUEL WITTER OF THE 17TH

The whereabouts of the soldier Samuel, after his July 1815 discharge, is unknown. The two censuses that bracket the war—although they missed countless people and their age information is frequently unreliable—offer three Samuel Witters (of whatever spelling) for further consideration.

1. Samuel Witter (1787–1876) of Pennsylvania and Illinois (our ancestor)
2. Samuel Witter (ca.1785–ca.1840s) of Kentucky and Illinois; alleged cousin of our Samuel
3. Samuel Witter (ca. 1785–1860s) of Pennsylvania, Indiana, and Ohio; first cousin to our Samuel

Each of these will be individually discussed, below.

1. Samuel Witter (1787–1876) of Pennsylvania and Illinois
   (Putative parents: Johannis & Catherine Widder/Witter)

No new research has been done in this segment on our Samuel Witter. The following synopsis provides basic data for comparison to the other two Samuels.44

2. Samuel Witter of Kentucky and Illinois
(Likely father: Samuel)

This Samuel Witter is a compatible prospect for a man who enlisted in a Kentucky regiment. His location is ideal. However, his occupation is unknown and his birthplace unproved. The pros and cons are as follows:

Pro:
• He was in Kentucky at the time the 17th was created as a Kentucky regiment.
• He remained in Kentucky after the war, making it likely that he would use a Kentucky attorney as an agent to acquire his military bounty land.
• His age is appropriate.

Con:
• His birthplace is unproved but is said to be “Breckinridge Co.,” Kentucky.
• No record has been found that identifies him as a millwright (or any other occupation).
• The 17th, as a Kentucky regiment, existed for two years before he would have enlisted; and he is not found on any known surviving militia roll.

As an overview of what is known and alleged:

C1785  Breckinridge Co. KY Alleged birth place and time. (If born here, it would then have been Jefferson or Nelson County)
1810  Breckinridge Co. KY Apparently one of 3 males 16–25 with Samuel Witter, 26–44 (see census below)

COMMENT:
Kentucky: Breckinridge, Grayson, and Ohio Counties were all clustered adjacent to each other.
Illinois: Marion, Wayne, Jefferson, and Hamilton were all clustered adjacent to each other.

No known researcher has identified the parents or origin of this Samuel Witter. Numerous online trees allege a birth in Breckinridge County, Kentucky, in 1785. Breckinridge did not exist at that time, although the area had been settled by white families. The genealogy of Breckinridge is as follows:

<tr>

If Samuel was, indeed, born in what became Breckinridge, then he was likely born in Jefferson or Nelson.

Possibly Samuel stemmed from the Witters of Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, who produced our Samuel Witter (1787–1876). Our Samuel’s daughter, Elizabeth, married Joshua Jones about 1840. On 23 September 1973 Elizabeth and Joshua’s granddaughter wrote the following about the nearby Witter family who arrived in Illinois from Breckinridge County, Kentucky:

“Our William [the writer’s great uncle, who was a son of Samuel] found out about these Witters living in Hamilton Co. and went to see James C. [Witters] and reported they were cousins.”49

The following census and land records provide a foundation for further study on this Kentucky-Illinois Samuel.

If the above ages are correct, then a male who was in the 16–25 category on the official census date (8 August 1820) could have been born as early as 9 August 1784. Samuel Witter of the 17th Regiment was said to be 31 on his July 1815 discharge, which apparently copied his April 1814 enlistment—placing his birth about 1782–83.

Census neighbors of the Breckinridge household—individuals offer the best clues to the pre-Kentucky origin of the Witters—are briefly extracted below. Particularly note James Eidson and Reuben Huff.

COMMENT:

In the “W” section, this Samuel Witter is surrounded by Wilsons, presumed relatives of his mother-in-law Sarah Wilson Crask. The next “W” name after his was that of Joseph Wilson, 45+. According to Crask researchers, Sarah was the daughter of a Joseph Wilson.52

The county seat of Grayson Co., Litchfield, was roughly 75 miles from Greenville, where the lawyer Alney McLean held his practice. As a circuit judge, McLean would have ridden circuit throughout eight to a dozen counties surrounding his home base, going from county seat to county seat for as much as six months of the year. As a frontier lawyer, he likely did the same. Those circuits and the local stay-overs during court sessions would have exposed him to many newly released veterans who did not care to relocate hundreds of miles away in order to make

Aside from lacking proof of birth, death, or identity, this chronology has other problems. The 1830 Washington County man was one Samuel Water, who can be traced there under that surname through numerous records. The 1840 Breckenridge man was age 20–29 in 1840, clearly a younger generation than the Samuel Witter who headed a household in 1820. Unlike the older men, born in an era in which middle names were uncommon, the younger 1840 male also carried a middle initial.

COMMENT:
Witter’s land lay roughly one mile from the county line that Marion shared with Wayne County. Samuel’s alleged sons Abraham, Lapsley, and James C.—as well as his daughter Nancy Horton—would eventually move across the Kentucky border into Wayne and then Hamilton County.

COMMENT:
Witter’s Clay County land lay roughly 9–10 miles northeast of his Marion County land. He did not move onto the land, however. He was still in Marion in 1840.

COMMENT:
According to descendants, after the death of Samuel’s wife Rebecca he married a second time to a woman named Synthanna. This second wife would appear to be the female 30–39 above. If she survived until 1878, a pension file could exist under her name; however, it was not found under known and logical variant spellings in the previously described search of standard indexes.

1850 U.S. Census
No trace has been found of this Samuel Witter in Illinois, Kentucky, or any other state under all conceivable variant spellings.

3. Samuel Witter (c1785–aft. 1860) of Pennsylvania, Indiana, and Ohio
(Father: Christoffel “Christopher” Witter)

This Samuel Witter of Union County, Indiana, and Preble County, Ohio, also seems to be a reasonable candidate for the man recruited by the 17th Regiment. The pros and cons are as follows:

Pro:
- His location was appropriate. Union and Preble Counties were only fifty or so miles from the Kentucky line, and could easily have been recruited by a Kentucky unit.
- His age is appropriate.
- His birthplace is consistently given as Pennsylvania.

Con:
- No record has been found that identifies him as a millwright, only as a farmer.
- He was born into a family of Dunkards, a religious faction that opposed military service, although his brother and brother-in-law did serve.

As a cursory overview of what is known and alleged:

63 Preble Co., Ohio, Chancery Record D, 1819–1824, p. 204, Mary Witter vs. Samuel Witter and Christopher Witter, petition for alimony. Mary Brown’s brother Henry married Samuel Witter’s sister Susanna in Union County, Ind., in that same year 1820; both Browns are said to be children of William and Sarah (Guffy) Brown of Albemarle Co., Va.; see Rev. Merle C. Rummel, The Virginia Settlement or the Four Mile Church of the Brethren (http://www.union-county.lib.in.us/GenwebVA4mile/Other%20Families.htm : accessed 8 January 2012).
The identification of this Samuel as son of Christoffel “Stoffel” (aka Christopher) Witter complicates the goal of our project: that is, the identification of Samuel Witter of the 17th—the Pennsylvania-born millwright described as having dark coloring, dark eyes, and dark hair.

Samuel of Preble was, apparently, the first cousin of the millwright Samuel (1787–1876) of Franklin and Bedford Counties, Pennsylvania. Physical similarities would not be surprising.

The Union-Preble Witters had also come from Franklin County, Pennsylvania. There, between 1800 and 1806, Christoffel “Stoffel” Witter was the adjacent neighbor and putative brother of John Witter (aka Johannis Widder), who is believed to have fathered the millwrights Samuel (1787–1876) and Abraham (1786–1882).65

In 1806, Christoffel sold his Franklin County land and moved to Indiana Territory. His purchases across the next decade would straddle the Indiana-Ohio line. His earliest-known land acquisition there was in Union Township, Union County, Indiana, in 1806. On 10 April 1812 he also purchased a tract in adjacent Preble County, Ohio, described as the SE¼, Sect. 32, Township 6, Range 1.66 His son Samuel, thus far, has not been found on any record prior to the 1820 census.

German Dunkards (Church of the Brethren) settled the Four-Mile Creek community along the state and county line in 1803.67 The church they formally established in 1809 was the first Church of the Brethren congregation in Indiana.68 The most detailed history of the Four-Mile Dunkards identifies Christopher Witter as one of the original two 1809 deacons. It also includes a number of individuals who intermarried with the Witters and were Samuel’s neighbors when he first appeared on record in Preble County, 1820.69

According to this history:

“The Dunkers hold the sixth commandment to be true as the Bible says it: ‘Thou shalt not kill.’ The Dunker belief in Pacifism has set the church apart throughout its history. It has led to persecution and ridicule, imprisonment or worse, through every conflict and war our nation has faced. It has led to condemnation and violent attack by neighbors and even personal friends. It has brought arguments and splintering within Dunker families, as youth faced by the peer pressures of the community in the hysteria of war fever, decided against their own family’s faith. ... It has faced the Brethren on the Four Mile, when there was Indian threats during the War of 1812 and local militia were formed.”70

For the War of 1812 era, this history notes just one Dunkard who succumbed to militarism: Samuel Witter’s brother-in-law, Isaac Miller, a scion of one of the most prominent Four Mile families. Young Miller had married Maria Witter, daughter of Christopher, in Preble County in 1811.71 In 1813, he reportedly joined the militia that mustered at a “gathering” at Xenia, some fifty miles away in Greene County, and subsequently “died of camp sickness.”72 One surviving militia roll, that of Capt. William Van Cleve’s Company, includes both an Isaac Miller and Jacob Witters,73 Samuel’s brother.

On 26 September 1820, shortly after the taking of the 1820 census that reported Samuel as a single male, he married his neighbor, Mary Brown. In mid-1823, they temporarily separated and the ensuing court documents identify Samuel’s father. Mary’s suit for alimony was, in fact, filed against Samuel and her father-in-law, Christopher Witter.74

The marriages of Maria, Sally, and Jacob Witter are indexed in Jordan Dodd, “Ohio Marriages, 1803–1900,” database, Ancestry.com (http://www.ancestry.com : accessed 7 January 2012). The residence of Samuel Houston, enumerated 4 houses from Samuel Witter, is placed on Rev. Merle C. Rummel’s map “Four Mile – 1820,” spanning the Ohio-Indiana border. Other 1820 householders depicted on this map—on the Indiana side of Four-Mile Creek—include Samuel’s father “Chris” and brother John.77

Richard Sloan, Samuel’s 1820 neighbor 10 houses removed, captained a War of 1812 unit.78 The lists surviving for the Preble County men in the War of 1812 do not include Samuel, but few such lists survive.

76 The Nathan Brown adjoining Samuel in 1820 is apparently not the Brown family into which Samuel married. Nathan Brown’s family is the subject of Marsha Hoffman Rising’s “Problematic Parents and Potential Offspring: The Example of Nathan Brown,” National Genealogical Society Quarterly 79 (June 1991): 85–99. According to Rising, the Sloans and Caldwell were also Brown in-laws and Thomas Medill, Esq., served as coexecutor of the will of Nathan’s brother George. These Browns were offspring of Irish-immigrants by way of South Carolina. Rising’s article does not discuss the Witters or others in this neighborhood cluster.

COMMENT:
Samuel’s age is clearly in error, when compared to all other census data for him. The young female in his household is apparently Lydia, the daughter with whom he lived after the death of his wife Mary. (See 1860 census data.)

81 1850 U.S. census, Preble Co., Ohio, Israel Township, p. 379, dwell. 2157, fam. 2164; digital image at Ancestry.com, citing National Archives microfilm publication M432, roll 723. Ancestry’s database entry for Sarah mistakenly gives her age as “20.”
Items 1–4 reflect work that remains to be done from the initial analysis of 15 December 2012. Items 5–6 are built upon the findings discussed in this present report. The feasibility of this list should be reevaluated when the DC researcher submits the results of his search.

1. “Regular Army Enlistment Papers, 1798–1912”; Records Relating to the Regular Army, 1798–1926; Records of the Adjutant General’s Office, RG 94; National Archives, Washington, D.C. Described in PI 17, entry 91. Unmicrofilmed. A researcher has been contacted, but she has made no date commitment.

2. “Muster Rolls of Regular Army Organizations, 1784–Oct. 31, 1912”; Muster Rolls, 1784–1912; General Records of the Adjutant General’s Office, RG 94. Described in PI 17, entry 53. Unmicrofilmed. Need full copies of the rolls on which Witter is said to appear: 6 June 1814, 16 and 25 February 1815, and 14 May 1815. A researcher has been contacted, but she has made no date commitment.

3. “Registers of No. of Recruits,” 1814–82; Recruiting Division, 1814–1913; Records of Divisions of the Adjutant General’s Office; Adjutant General’s Records, RG 94. Described in PI 17, entry 94. Unmicrofilmed. Need to search for April 1814 recruitment activity by Lt. Hackley. A researcher has been contacted, but she has made no date commitment.

4. War of 1812 Pension Application Files. Digitized files are being placed online by FamilySearch.com and Fold3. However, the digitization of these files has just begun. When new postings are consulted, the search should include not just the surname “Witter” and its variants but all individuals who have been identified as his comrades in this report and possibly other rolls to be found by the DC researcher. Old veterans frequently testified for each other and, even when an ancestor is not directly named in a comrade’s file, the activities described therein may assist with research on the elusive ancestor.

5. Serial Set & Related Records, Government Documents Section, Vanderbilt Library. Post 1875 research needs to be done in Statutes at Large, House & Senate Journals, House & Senate Miscellaneous Documents, etc., for a further trace of the Samuel Witter pension “case.”

6. Monroe County, Arkansas, Land and Tax Rolls. An initial order has been placed with the Family History Library for the following items:
   - 1019813 Surveyor’s Record, Vol. A (1898), List of property assessed for taxation (1877, 1889), and J. P. Docket (1875–1901) [No other tax or survey records for Monroe County are available through FHL]
   - 1019814 Index to Deeds, 1830–1911
   - 1019817 Deeds, A–D, 1830–53
   - 1019818 Deeds, E–G, 1853–1859

7. Preble County, Ohio, Local Records. Complete and thorough research needs to be done in all available records for Preble County—courthouse, church, private manuscripts, etc.—for Samuel Witter, his family, and his associates. The original file should particularly be sought for the 1823 separation and alimony suit of Mary (Brown) Witter against Samuel and his father. The fact that the father is involved might simply mean that the father has cosigned a promissory note for the son.
However, it might also suggest that the two men were engaged in some joint financial or occupational activities. Deeds and tax rolls should also be given priority in the quest to identify Samuel Witter’s occupation.

8. Union County, Indiana, Local Records. The same thorough research needs to be conducted for Samuel and his kith and kin in Union County, where he grew to maturity.
